THE WORES OF WILLIAM SHAKSPERE. Edited by Richard Graut White. Vols. 6, 7 and 8. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

This work, which is now complete so far as the plays are concerned (the first volume, which has not yet been atory matter), is a reprint of the original folio of 1623 miserable a specimen of book-making as was ever is sed from any press in the darkest ages of the printer's he plays were evidently set up from prompters oles, arranged by illiterate persons, and altogether the ork most meanly done. Mr. White, with a degree of to rights. The notes are exceedingly voluminous, and occupy more space than the plays themselves. Mr. White has, in his anxiety to avoid even the shadow of a ach of unfairness, given all the commentators an chance as to the elucidation of disputed passages, nd the natural consequence is that the reader is more uzzled than ever. Between Stevens, and Malone, and most pedantic and proix of all), the simple student or master rises from the work in the most bewildered nd that can be conceived. The volumes before

Leaves from an Acron's Note Book, with Reminiscences and Chat of the Green Room and Buge in England and America, by George Vandenhoff. Appleton & Co.

This is a lively, goss'pping autobiography, such as might be expected from a man of Mr. Vandenhoff's varied experiences and general accomplishments; for though known to the public only as an actor and lecturer, he is esteemed ong a large circle of private acquaintances as a most genial and delightful companion. A man who has been about as much as he has, and who socially, as well as professionally, has come in contact with most of the leading wits and celebrities of the day, has naturally a good deal to relate that will interest the public. Mr. Vandenhoff gives the story of his life rather as a framework for his anecdotes of others than as a narrative intended for egotistical effect. What he has to tell, he tells simply and without affectation, his rattling offnand stage manner pervading the general style of his book and leaving the ression, when the reader has finished it, that he has been listening to a conversationalist of unusual powers.
This is the effect that such a book should create, for the staple of its matter is not sufficiently substantial to justify anything like an effort at serious writing.

The sketches of which this little volume is composed are evidently written by a woman of a refined and cultivated mind, capable of higher efforts than any that her modest ambition has as yet contemplated. They are marked by an earnestness of spirit, a liveliness of imagination and a correctness of judgment which show that a lite-rary life is her proper vocation. Unwilling as we are to touch upon the domestic trials and misfortunes of those whose works alone fall within our province, we feel that we ought not to omit stating the additional claims which this lady has to public favor. She is supporting a large family by the efforts of her pen, and it is to be hoped that the touch-ing allusion which she makes to the fact in her preface will create for her (at least amongst her own sex) an interest which will enable her the more easily to fulfil the PORMS BY JAMES CLARRICE MANGAN—With Blo-graphical Introduction by John Mitchell. P. M. Haverty, Fulton street.

The poems of Clarence Mangan, although ignored by the British quarteriles, and bitterly assailed by the small London critics, will live in the memory of his country-men as long as those of Davis or any of the other writers ful powers, considering the disheartening difficulties and discouragements through which his genius forced a recognition. His story was a sad one, and is movingly told in the preface to this book by John Mitcheil. Mr. Haverty has rendered our public a service in introducing to its notice the complete poems of this gifted writer.

PROBABLE FATAL STABBING APPRAY.—At a late hour on Friday night two men, named John Donnell and John Monaghan, got into a fight at No. 220 West Sixteenth street. A friend to both parties, named Charles Cobane, interfered for the purpose of separating the combatants, when he was stabbed with a knife, receiving a deadly wound in the cheet, likewise one in the abdomen, which is considered highly dangerous. The wounded man was physician in attendance gave it as his opinion that the pa-tient would not survive the effects of the injuries. Donnell was arrested by policemen Boyd and Hughes, of the Six-teenth precinct, and locked up in the station house on the Cobane yesterday, when the evidence of the wounded nan was reduced to writing, as follows:-

Charles Cobane, being duly sworn, deposes and says— I am a laborer, and live at 79 Ninth avenue; I am a single I am a laborer, and live at 79 Ninth avenue; I am a single man; I went into the liquor store of Owen Mullen, in Sixteenth street, about nine o'clock last evening, for the purpose of attending the raffling of a pistol; I found in the store two brothers, named McCartney, and two brothers named Monahan, my brother, and three girls namee Mary Monahan, Sarah Devine and Catharine Kattel; also, the mother of Miss Devine; shortly after 11, the presoners, McGinn and O'Donnell came in; they were in liquor, as indicated by their actions, and immediately commenced to quarrel with some of the parties about the raffling; I was sitting in a back room, on a settee, at the time, smoking a segar; when I heard the noise and confusion I ran out into the street; they were then on the sidewalk, and I found them pulling and fighting, holding each other and striking; I then tried to separate them, and white so engaged, received two stabs, one in the upper part of the right breast, and the other in the lower region of the bowers; the little man (Donnell) gave me the stabs; they were given in quick succession; I saw an instrument in his band, but cannot tell what kind of an instrument it was; I began to stagger, and shortly afterwards fell pain, my bowels protruded nad swelled up, and I relt the shoot trickle from my breast, I was then carried back into the liquor store, and my brother went for Dr. Web; he and Dr. Thompson both came, and advised my removal to this hospital, which was done about two o'clock A. M.; there was also in the liquor store, in addition to those named, the proprietor, Wm. Bell; it was about twelve o'clock when I was stabbet; to the best of my recollection I did not strike any one; I recegnize the man now present, who says his name is John Donnell, as the person who stabbed me last night.

Fonnell was committed to the Tombs to await the result of Cobards' injuries. The prisoner is about twenty-ciptly years of age, is a native of Ireland, and lives in Sixteenth street. Cobance injuries.

THE CONDETION OF THE STEAMER—THE WORE OF THE WINDERSS—THE CAUSE OF THE ACCIDENT, STO.

We have intelligence from the sunken steamer up to ten o'clock last night, furnished by a gentleman who spent the day yesterday on board making examinations and collecting facts as to the cause of the disaster.

She lies presty much the same as when last heard from, except much nearer abore. The cargo continued to float out at ebb tide yesterday and the night before in large quantities, but none of the passengers' baggage. The atcamers Columbia, Satellite and propeller Alpha were busily engaged in picking up freight as it floated out during ebb tide, some of which floated off and was lost. The sloop Daird Sands came down yesterday afternoon with a load of freight, among which was a fine Chickering pisnoforte. Another piane was also picked up and put on board the Columbia. Large quantities of tea and dry goods boxes had been picked up.

The large beisting derrick will go up to merrow, when the walking beam, boilers, smoke pipes and all the heavy machinery will be taken out. When this is done the

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD. There appears in the Tribune of Saturday morn card which does great injustice to the operator in the New York office of the Buffalo line, as well as to the line itself. The author of the card seems to be grieved because he could not get over the wires, at midnight of Wednesday. a telegraphic despatch announcing the disaster to the steamship New World. The facts in the case are these: The regular closing hour of the offices on the Buffalo line is 9:30 P. M. On Wednesday night, at nearly eleven o'clock, an individual called upon the operator at Yonkers, and having roused him from his slumbers, requested him to send a telegraphic despatch to New York. The caller was assured by the operator that it was too late, that all the offices were closed, and it would be useless to make any attempt at that hour to rouse the New York the applicant, and, therefore, in order to make it so, Mr. Ashley, the operator, went to his office, and remained there for upwards of an hour, calling in vain for the New York office to respond. This was the precise result which the applicant had been told to expect, and here the matter necessarily ended. The author of the card seems to be grieved because he

FIRE IN NINTH AVENUE .- About eight o'clock on Saturday morning a fire broke out in a stable in the rear of 210 Ninth avenue. The flames communicated to a blacksmith shop, 247 West Twenty-faurth street, and also to the Methodist Episcopal Mission church, No. 245, all of which were destroyed before the fire was extinguished. Mr. Thomas James, who occupied the stable, lost his horse, valued at one hundred and fifty dollars. Efforts were made to rescue the animal, but its fright prevented any one approaching it.

The blacksmith shop was owned by William Wright, whose loss will be about $1,000; no insurance. The church building was owned by Charles H Mount; it is damaged about $2,500, and is insured for $1,500 in the New York Fire and Marine Insurance Company. There was a fine organ in the church, which was owned by the Universalist society that formerly worshipped there; it was destroyed. The fire, it is said, was caused by accident.
